THINKING OUT LOUD

By H. M. L.

Making guns for war purposes shot the price of butter sky high during the war. It is still up there among the constellations, but the number of light years between butter and the common purse is slowly being reduced. Eggs are also still in the upper food brackets. It was not so long ago that at this season of the year, eggs could be purchased for 20 cents a dozen, as contrasted with the present 65 cents. But of course costs of producing butter and eggs are also extremely high.

We do note, however that farmers are making more money than for decades, that is, farmers in general. Some farmers are never prosperous. So we think we can safely conclude that the farmers profit margin, as reflected in the purchasing power of a dollar, has considerably increased. Politically we believe this is a good omen for Republican virtory in 1948. Farmers outside the Southern States, usually vote Republican when they are prosperous but, in hard times, give the Democrat donkey a chance to pull the load.

It is certain that Republicans in Congress will try to keep the farmer prosperous. They know now that any other course is likely to result in a Democratic victory. Whether Republicans will continue the coddling the farmers received under the New Deal is not yet clean, but even if the pap bottle is partially withdrawn the farmer still will sit pretty, we believe, for several years to come.

The reason is a large one. Food and water are basic necessities. Without them we all perish. While there seems an assurance of plenty of water, there are now some 2.2 billion of people on this planet, and according to Dr. Hugh H. Bennett, chief of the U. S. Soil Conservation Service, an adequate diet from food now being raised on earth is only possible for 1.6 billion of them.. The others, if the good doctor is corect, are naturally bound to slowly starve. or at least stay alive on a pitifully inadequate diet. Making allowances for a bureaucrat who probably has plenty of time to figure out the dire results that would follow curtailing the funds that support his bureau, it does strike one that 2.2 billion people need a lot of food. The population seems to have increased despite war's destruction while the available food supply, temporarily has decreased.

Whether it will catch up with the demand or not in the next few years, may be debatable. In any event, provided our American farmers are given an open sesame to world trade, and no hampering domestic restrictions, the demand for food in the world will probably keep them in a very prosperous condition for several yeas. They may not need the subsidies the New Deal lavished on them.

Dr. Charles A.. Kettering, head scientist of General Motors Corporation, in a recent address opined that science will devise a method of providing more food by means of radiation chemistry. The process, he stated, of photosnynthesis in plants is little understood, but once laboratories have hit on its secret, a vast entargement of food production he considered possible. Dr. Kettering also said that an abundant supply of fertilizers are present in sea water, once we find a cheap method of extracting them. Fertilizers alone could probably more than double the present food supply.

However, the food supply now inadequate to support the world's present population adequately will probably not meet the demand until need becomes pressing upon the mort intelligent sections of the population. Then, as happens under the impact of war, scientists will become engrossed in the problem and, as usual, will find a solution.

A few years ago we happened to be in the science building of the University of California and saw long row of tomato plants with reddening fruit growing from a course woven clothe suspended over a trough of water. The water had been chemically treated to supply the plants with mineral nutrient, and the rest of their subsistence came from the air. It will be some time, we think, before this method of growing tomatdes will become cheaper than growing them in a field. Still it decidedly opens a door into the future of food production.

If the price of essential food commodities rises too high some expedient, we may be sure, will be found to produce foods by new scientific processes, which may force prices down. It behooves the farmers, as well as other producers of things used by their fellow men, to recall the admonition of St. Paul: "Moderation in all things." This applies especially to profits in food..

OFFICIAL CITY INSTRUCTIONS ON PARKING METERS

(Editor's Note: The questions and asnwers below are furnished by the city for the information of prospective users of the parking meters).

Starting at 9a. m. Monday, motorists will pay at the rate of five cents per hour for parking vehicles on Broad, North Pine, Commercial, Main, Sacramento and parts of Boulder and Nevada Street in Nevada City.

In order that people of the area may become acquainted with all details in connection with the meters, the following questions and answers have been prepared at the request of the City Council:

Q. What is a parking meter?

A. A meter is a mechanical device to regulate limited parking with equal fairness to everyone.

Q. How will parking meters help eliminate parking problems in Nevada City?

A. Experience of several hundred cities throughout the United States shows that parking meters will increase the turnover of vehicles 300 to 500 per cent. By doing this, cruising to find a space will be materially reduced.

Q. What fee must be paid.

A. One cent for twelve minutes, two cents for twenty four minutes, three cents for thirty six minutes, four cents for forty eight minutes, end five cents or one nickel for sixty minutes. You can buy only stipulated times with the stimpulated coins.

Q. Does the motorist do anything besides insert the proper coin or coins?

Since the meters installed in Nevada City are fully automatic, all the motorist has to do is insert the proper coin. There are no cranks or handles to wind.

Q. During what time will the meters be in operation?

A. From 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. on week days. Sundays and holidays are exempted.

Q. How can I tell the remaining legal time on the meter?

A. The white indicator hand on the face of the meter shows the amount of time remaining..

Q. What is the penalty for overparking?

A. The penalty for overtime parking is $1.00 if paid to the City Judge or at the police department within 24 hours of the time when notice was attached to the vehicle.

Q. How should I park my car on streets that have meters?

A. In parallel parking spaces the motorist should park the vehicle with meter at about the center of the right front wheel.

Q. On what basis has the city installed the parking meters?

A. The meters have been installed at no outlay of money by the ity. The meter company receives 50 per cent of the money taken in by the meters. This 50 per cent applies on the purchase price of the meter, in the event the city decides to retain them after the trial period of six months. The other 50 per cent of revenue taken goes to the city.

Q. What will the city do with their share of the revenue?

A. This is a question for the City Council to decide. Generally the money received from parking meters is used to improve traffic and parking conditions in the city. Such as street signs, marking the streets and curbs and can be used where needed the most.

Q. Who is responsible for any damage to a meter or meter post?

A. The city will hold the person or persons responsible for any damege

Parking Meters

NEVADA CITY: Officer Clarence Martz at 9 a. m. this morning began tagging automobiles parked by meters with the violation sign showing. Today, however, only courtesy citations are being issued, as warning. Tomorrow, bona fide tickets citing the car owner one dollar, will be given to parking ordinance violators who fail to feed the meters with nickels and pennies.

City crews completed the installation of the shiny aluminum alloy gadgets on Friday morning. Curiosity prompted many citizens to give them a trial with nickels and pennies. Visitors from out of town didn't realize that the meters had just been installed, and paid tribue as a matter of course.

Reaction among local citizens was varied. Some said they thought it was an excellent thing for the community while others predicted the little machines would be removed within 60 days.

Elsewhere in this issue of the Nugget, the city's official list of questions and answers gives information on all phases of parking meter operation.

GRASS VALLEY: With a first period score of 23 to 0, the Grass Valley Miners A basketball team marched on to defeat the Marysville Indians 58 to 30 Friday night, on the Miners Sourt, Friday night.

At the end of the first quarter the entire first string left the game and second and third strings played the major part of the rest of the game. Even with Grass Valley using a reserve team the Indians didn't score until mid way in the second quarter.

At the half time the score stood at Grass Valley 31, Marysville 9.

In the B division, the Indians defeated the Miners 38 to 29. The Miners lead the first half with a 7 to 11 margin over the Indians.

For Grass Valley, center Roy Partington scored 11 points, with Larry Orzalli, forward, following up with 10 points.

Next Friday the Miners will meet the Nevada City Yellowjackets on the Nevada City court.

VALLEY GRILL ROBBED OF CASH

GRASS VALLEY: The Valley Grill, owned by Mrs. Lola Richmond was robbed Thursday night. According to a report made to the Grass Valley police, the cash register was looted of $41 in silver and currency and three of the juke boxes were opened and robbed of an undetermined amount.

Mrs. Richmond said that the amount taken from the jukeboxes might be considerable, since the collector had not wanted to cross the picket line which has been maintained in front of her restaurant for three months..

IDAHO MARYLAND MINERS PORTAL SUIT IS FILED

By PHYLLIS LINDLEY
Secretary, Mother Lode Mine and Mill Workers Union, 839, CIO

Three separate causes of action against the Idaho Maryland Mines Corporation are stated in the brief supporting the claims of 52 miners fo backpay for alleged violations of Section V (a) of the Fair Labor Standards Act. Filed on February 11 in the United States District Court for the Northern District of California, Southern Division, the case has been assigned to Judge Goodman of San Francisco..

The employees claim pay for time spent on the company's premises and to the benefit of the company before and after regularly schedled starting and quitting time. Employees have been required, by reason of the dirty and dangerous nature of their work and by reason of the valuable nature of the products and materials they produce, to change into special work clothing and safety gear, before going to work, the bief states. Employees are further required to check in tools, change clothing, shower and undergo inspection before leaving the company's premises. For all such time thus consumed, employees have been receiving no compensation. "We did not allege any specific time, but I am sure that we can prove more time than was involved in the Mt. Clemens case" Francisco J. Mc-Ternan, Jr. attorney for the miners, stated today. In the Mt. Clemens case,, the original test case or these chantime pay suits, the judge ruled that insufficient time was consumed to warrant compensation.

Individual claims are valid for work performed during the three years next preceding February 11, 1947 or, in the case of veterans, that period plus a period equal to time served in the armed forces. Since the claimants are unable to ascertain the the exact amount of time involved nor the exact amount of overtime rendered, no specific total liability can be computed in the Idaho-Maryland case. Underscoring the uncertainties as to the time element, Mr. McTernan explailed, "our policy has been to name specific amounts only when, from the facts available, we can make a reliable estimate and not have to make a fantastic claim in order to cover all possible contingencies."

The brief also sets forth questions regarding the present 50c travel time pay and overtime rates for Saturday work. The case against the Empire Star is still under preparation. The claims against both companies are still being accepted at the CIO office here.

Judge Goodman is the judge who ruled in favor of the CIO against Vivian Kellams when she filed a lible suit against the Labor Herald and a number o CIO officials recently.

AUBURN'S REACTION TO METERS VARIED, MANY FINES ARE PAID

Enforcement of meter parking regulations in Auburn continued to result in large numbers of citations being issued this week, although the officers in charge reported the violations were decreasing.

Police Judge C. F. Richter stated between 300 and 400 fines had been paid by violators since the enforcement period was begun on February 10.

A large number of additional citations are still outstanding he indicated.

Willis Endicott reported total collections from the meters to date amounted to $531.33. Last collection was made on Tuesday.

Collections are made about two days apart and vary in amount Endicott said.

The first collection after the enforcement period was begun amounted to $160. The second collection was $107.30; and the third, $172. Another collection will be made today.

Endicott's figures show that the meters average $73.41 a. day, not counting the preliminary $93.35 collected before the meters were officially enforced.

Many criticisms both favorable and unfavorable, are being received by the city regarding the meters..

Some parking violators claimed that they had no change to operate the meters and went into stores to obtain some. When they returned they found citations on their cars.

The question of delivery trucks, which must make numerous stops along the streets, is being considered by the city council.

On the other hand, favorable reports have been received from out of town shoppers, who state they are able to park in front of a store to do their buying and no longer find it necessary to carry their purchases several blocks to their cars.

Mass Meeting of Lumbermen to Protest Proposed Ordinances

GRASS VALLEY: A mass meeting of lumbermen and sawmill operators has been called for Wednesday night, February 26th, in the Veterans Memorial Building, Grass Valley, to protest two proposed ordinances, pending before the county board of supervisors, which make drastic changes in logging and sawmill operations and place restrictions on home owning in the county horests.

The supervisors have set Tuesday, March 4th, as a date for a hearing on the two ordinances, which are backed by the national and state forest officials as measures that are garde as necessary to precent forest fires.

The ordinance dealing with lumber slash provided that before cutting each operator must surround each 10 acres of land to be cut over must be enclosed in marginal strip of 100 feet width. Limbs, bark and discarded timber must be burned within the time limits prescribed in the Public Resources Code.

The ordinance relating to homes in the forest requires owners to maintain about their homes a fire break free of inflammable material, and to place on their chimneys a screen or spark arrester. Precautions prescribed by the National Board of Fire Underwriters are made mandatory.

All officers of the state and federal forest services, under the proposed ordinances are declared to have police powers and empowered to make arrests without warrants.

Leading the opposition to the proposed ordinance is Clair Ivey, logging contractor who supplies a part of the logs for the Iwaho Maryland Mines Corporation sawmills, and is one of the largest operators in logging.

Ivey declares that the ordinances relating to slash would double the price of logs, and undoubtedly put every operator out of business.

The ordinances relating to homes in the forest, he said would undoubtedly require owners to keep some one constantly on guard at the dwellings..

The advertisements inserted in local newspapers are headlined: The Future of Nevada County Is Not Worth a Tinker's Dam. If—and goes on to cite why in the opinion of the lumbermen that will be case. Petitions against the ordinances are being circulated among all interested parties.

JUST WONDERIN'

I wonder now, in pensive mood,
About our friends, our books;
For some are written by the wise
And some by dolts and crooks.
And some are read by men of taste
And some by young beginners,
And books that quite enchant the saints,
May also charm the sinners.

Getting acquainted with a new book should be as delightful an experince as is that of making a new friend; as eagerly anticipated and as thoroughly enjoyed.

It is but natural to look upon our books as friends and to treat them as such. Placing a well chosen book upon the library shelf, is placing at our disposal, a source of entertainment, or information and there are several facts about our friends, the books, which we should at all times bear in mind. A book's time is our time, for it waits to serve, and it is at all times ready to give of its best, freely and without reservations.

There is nothing more democratic than a book, one that was written for the entertainment and solace of the saint, will give its message just as readily to the sinner as one that has been included among the world's immortals will stand sedately and uncomplainly beside one of our most sodden of best sellers. We may at times, find it difficult to assemble human friends in congenial groups and to avoid the friction sometimes occasioned by their varying opinions, but not so with books. Treat them as you wiil, they are faithful still, place them as you will, they are undisturbed by incongruous companionship. They wait only to serve.

The child who has been taught to love and value the compansionship of books, has the wealth of the ages at his command. He will know no lonely hours, for at will, he can summon the great ones of earth to bear him company, and lead him as he desires along the lowly walks of life or afar among the stars. Parents and teachers can do no greater service to the young under their care, than to tell them how to make friends of books..

How can this valuable service to the young be best accomplished? Various minds will find various answers; perhaps, were I given the task, I should turn the child loose in a well stoked library and let nature take its course. I recall a young student who "hated Shakespeare" and the reason was not hard to find. His professor had been hypercritical; the young man's attention had been directed to every defect to be found in the great bard's lines, the lines, the beauty and power of those lines had ben of secondary importance.

I wonder what the result might have been had the student read Shakespeare without benefit of professors, higher criticism—Lamb's Tales, etc. After all, why can't we meet our books as we meet our friends, before explainers, exemplifiers and expounders have beclouded the relationship?

Uncle Silas says: "Cousin Jed was going to buy his wife a book for Christmas, but just at the last moment he found that she had a book.—Adeline Merriam Conner.

BROAD STREET

By Harley M. Leete, Jr.

Those prim upright gadgets that line our down town streets don't say a word. They just sit there with their little red flags up in the air waiting. They're waiting for Monday, when they first go into effect. And waiting for Tuesday, when those police citations give your wallet a one dollar bad time, if you forget the nickel and dime rent.

On the newspaper we like these gadgets. Why? Because they promise something dear to a newspaper man's heart—CONTROVERSY. Some time in the near future, the pros and cons will battle it out, we hope. (With words of course). And when they do, it'll make mighty good reading for Nugget subscribers.

For gentle reader, a neat, logical digest of local opinion on the meters. They're the worst thing that ever happened to this town. It's liable to turn right into a ghost town. The town is really getting modern. Those parking meters are going to bring in much needed revenue to the city. They'll be a great success as soon as people get used to them. They'll be a complete failure and be removed in sixty days, and think of the cost to the town. No matter what happens, it won't cost the city a cent, because they're got such a good contract with the meter company. They put meters in lots of places where people never park. Why couldn't we wait until Grass Valley had meters—now everyone'll drive over there to shop. For once, we beat Grass Valley to a progressive move, thank goodness, we didn't wait for them and then copy their action.

On only one point is the entire town agreed: And that is the biggest laugh in years was furnished when the meter poles on one side of Broad Street were put in the wrong distance apart and all had to be torn up and moved a couple of days later. Why not use the first days collection to erect a bronze plaque commenorating that remarkable act?

Dear Mr. and Mrs. Nevada City:

Do you know that City Councilman Art B. Innis has a favorite project for the welfare of the town? Well, he has, and it's this. Art thinks that the city should put into operation its water chlorination plant. His reasoning is very simple and to the point. The town should have the purest water available. It has got a chlorination plant for purifying part of its water supply. This plant is not in use. We ought to put it in use. Art has brought this matter up in council meetings and various members of the council have aired their views on the matter. What are your views? Mr. and Mrs. Nevada City?

One of the sharpest ideas in recent weeks, in our opiinon, is Chamber of Commerce President George Hansen's regarding a co-ordinating committe to work with the Grass Valley and Nevada City chambers of commerce, Hansen is for a committee formed of members of each chamber, to send Grass Valley representatives to Nevada City meetings and Nevada City chamber members to Grass Valley meetings. The committee would work for the solution of common problems.

Just looking around today (Washington's birthday), I wouldn't say the merchants were exactly unanimous in their observance of Washington's birthday. No concern of ours, because we never shut up shop on a day when the next issue of the paper is being worked on. Furthermore, George Washington probably doesn't care either.

Donald Robert Paine absolutely PROMISES to be guest editor of Broad Street next Thursday. He's going to write, in that inimitable smooth flowing Paine style of a Saturday in Nevada City.

The first post office west of the Rockies was opened at Astoria, Oregon, on March 9, 1847.

Plentiful and a Protein Source Are the Cereal Breakfast Foods

Everybody knows that protein is essential in everyday meals because it's the food element that builds, maintains and repairs the body's muscles and cells. But not everybody knows every single one of the foods that furnishes precious protein.

Meat, eggs, milk, cheese are fairly familiar sources of protein. Perhaps less known as a protein source but extremely important today are the grain foods which include the versatile cereals. Cereal breakfast foods contain an average of about 11 per cent of protein which becomes highly effective in combination with relatively small amounts of milk, eggs, meat, fish and cheese.

THRERE'S PROTEIN IN BREAKFAST CEREAL BOWL

A surprise to some but a reassuring one, is the fact that your favorite cereal with milk, and sugar as you eat it in the morning provides notable amounts of biologically adequate protein. Eat a good breakfast every day of some fruit, some cereal, milk, bread and butter and you'll buttress our protein supply as well as give yourself a good start toward feeling fine all through the morning..

CEREAL GOOD INGREDIENT AT OTHER MEALS TOO!

Too good a food to confine to breakfast the cereals have a place at other meals, too for hearty flavor, elightful texture and important nutrition. Learn to weave the cereals through meals throughout the day for variety in menus at a very thrifty figure.

With the help of the cereals you can add extra nutrition as well as variety to main dishes, desserts, hot breads, muffins and cookies.

WHEEL MISALIGNMENT

Misalignment of the front wheels is hard to detect in modern days of light steering, but should not go unchecked. At the first change in the car's steering qualities or a sudden wearing of tires, the car should be carefully checked for such a fault.

Veterans' News

"Look before you leap" is the advice Veterans Administration is giving ex-GIs who are inclined to rush headlong to convert their term National Service Life Insurance. Veterans are being cautioned to wait until they are reasonably sure of where they seand financially before converting to permanent policies.

VA points out that term policies may be kept eight years from the issue date if they were issued before January 1, 1946. Even policies that were issued after January 1, 1946 may be kept five years.

The big thing for veterans to remember when thinking of converting to permanent insurance is that the type of policy they choose should be suited to their income and family responsibilities. Since many veterans are at the present time unable to determine these things, they should hold on to their term insurance until they are more settled, VA says.

Veterans Administration contact representatives in small towns and cities throughout Northern California are able to advise veterans on all types of converted policies, the advantages of each and their cost. Before converting, VA says, veterans should avail themselves of the services of the contact representatives nearest their home, or seek the advice of a commercial life insurance concern.

Q: I am the wife of a World War II veteran. My husband was recently blinded in both eyes as the result of an accident. Will his National Life Insurance remain in force even if he does not make payments,

A: Yes. Loss of sight is considered total disability for insurance purposes and his premiums will be waived. He should apply for waiver of premium and then continue making payments until advised by VA that it is no longer necessary.

Q: If I should lose time in the future while going to school under the GI Bill, would that time be charged against my educational benefits?

A. No. If you should become ill while attending school, advise VA of the fact and time lost will not be charged against you.

Q: I am a World War II veteran taking a school course that requires three hours per week. Am I entitled to receive subsistence allowance under the GI Bill?

A: If you are taking an undergraduate course at a college or university, you are entitled to receive one quarter of the full subsistence allowance. But if you are taking a high school or vocational school course of less than six hours per week, you are not eligible for any subsistence allowance.

The enlisted men's terminal leave pay bill makes provision for payment of unused leave to widow, children or parents of veterans who died after discharge, the Nevada County Veterans Service office announced today.

Complete instructions and assistance in settling claims are available to survivors at this office, located at 310 W. Main Street, Grass Valley. General regulations provide that where the veteran died after discharge, settlement in cash can be made to his wife and children, if any, in equal shares; if no wife or child, survives, to surviving parents, including grandparents, stepparents, father and mother through adoption or other persons who stood in the relationship of the parent. It cannot be paid to a brother or sister unless he or she stood in relation of a parent. About 40,000,000 of such terminal leave pay has gone unclaimed by survivors..

In the case of insane, incompetent veterans a cash settlement can be paid to his conservator or other suitable person for the veteran's use and benefit.

The bill makes no provision for payment of unused leave to widow, children or parents of those who died in service, since the six months gratuity already paid by the armed forces covers these cases. Information on obtaining forms, and assistance in completing them may be secured at the Nevada County Veterans Service office, 310 W. Main St., Grass Valley, by W. N. McCormack or his assistant, Coral Morton.

On the average ten inches of snow are equivalent in water content to one inch of rain.

No more of this!

It's hard work, isn't it, when you have to plug in a lamp, radio or vacuum cleaner by the grunt and groan method?

This situation is common in many homes. It is simply a case of too few outlets, too far apart and connected to too few wiring circuits.

What is the remedy? For your present home, or the new home you are planning to build, insist on and get—"Certified Adequate Wiring." That means your home will have a "tailor-made" job of wiring that will be modern and stay modern for years to come. Write in or come in to any P. G. and E. office for details on "Certified Adequate Wiring" and get your copy of the 16-page booklet—"Electricity in Your Home Plans."

FROZEN MILK SEEN AS FOOD LOCKER ITEM

Fresh homogenized milk frozen in paper containers, a development of wartime military research, may be a standard item in frozen food lockers of the future, according to Dr. J. D. Hardenbergh, executive secretary of the American Veterinary Medical Association.

At present there are areas in the United States where fresh milk is not available in sufficient amounts to meet demand. Usually, wherever hay is in short supply for feeding dairy cattle, milk also is in short supply.

These areas, D. Hardenbergh believes would be ready markets for frozen milk, if it could be sold at a fair price. Likewise hospitals, the schools and other institutions are potential large scale buyers. The Panama Canal Zone where at times milk can be obtained only through a doctor's prescription, would also be a fertile market.

NEW DEVICE MEASURES FISH MORE ACCURATELY

LA JOLLA: A new gadget called an arm protractor, for measuring the angles of a fish's snout or fins, has been invented by Carl I. Johnson, foreman of buildings and grounds, at the University of California's Scripps Institute of Oceanography and is described by Prof. Carl H. Hubbs, professor of biology in a recent issue of Copeia.

The gadget described as an instrument that should be in every ichthyologists's kit, is a common 8-inch protractor to whose base a 15-inch strip of plexiglass has been centered and mounted on a pivot.

Prof. Hubbs writes that heretofore it has been common practice to describe the form and position of structures in fishes in terms that are almost meaningless to one who does not have a complete set of comparable specimens. With the new arm protractor much more accurate measurements may be made.

The device is expected to be useful not only to scientists who study fish, but reptile experts and other zoologists.

LOYLE FREEMAN COMPLETES COURSE AT COLLEGE OF FAIRS

Loyle Freeman, secretary-manager, Nevada County Fair, today received certificates of successful completion of courses at the second annual College of Fairs.

The award was made after intensive study from Feb. 17-20 of a series of courses in better fair management on the campus of California Polytechnic College at San Luis Obispo.

Studies of many subjects included accounting, tickets, parking, concessions, construction, entertainment and more effective administration of the funds used for prizes to inspire production and display of better things, which in California come chiefly from taxes on the state supervised thoroughbred horse racing industry.
